THE DECLINE OF DEMOCRACY

Democracy is not yet dead in America, but it is on life support, fighting for survival. You think I'm exaggerating? Here are the facts, as evidenced by three major reports in March:

Democracy has deteriorated so much in the U.S. that we have slipped from 20th to 51st of the 179 countries ranked in the 2026 annual report from V-Dem at Sweden's University of Gothenburg. We now fall between Slovakia and Greece!

Bright Line Watch, which surveys 500 U.S. scholars, puts America midway between a liberal democracy and a dictatorship. A dictatorship, for Christ's sake! My husband is rolling over in his grave.

And Freedom House, a Washington, D.C.-based democracy think tank, reported that in free countries, ours registered among the largest declines in political rights and civil liberties last year.

Thank you, President Trump, for sending the military into our own cities to stoke fear and kill citizens. You have done everything you could to gut the Voting Rights Act, crush freedom of speech, overstep laws, circumvent Congress and concentrate executive power. It took other strongmen, like Orban in Hungary and Modi in India, far, far longer to accomplish what our President has done since taking office last year.

But it is not only respected surveys that are reporting democracy's decline. Americans are damn well feeling it too. In a recent NPR/PBS News/Marist poll, 78% of us—more than three-quarters—saw a serious threat to democracy in our country! And it's no wonder, when the very word has been eradicated from the Republican platform.

The courts are helping to hold Trump's would-be dictatorship at bay for now, but they cannot do so alone. If you feel that our beloved country is headed in the wrong direction, if you know that you are worse off now than you were just a short time ago and you sense that America is no longer the land of the free, then please be brave enough to speak out and, most importantly, vote. Vote for the party that still proudly promotes democracy!

"It's a superior timepiece…a minute-by-minute reminder of what's actually important in life."

JARED KUSHNER

To staff his second presidential administration, Trump completely dispensed with experts, instead choosing amateurs molded in his own image: TV stars and real-estate moguls. Enter his son-in-law Jared Kushner, now a special envoy for peace tasked with negotiating an end to the disastrous Iran war that daddy-in-law chose to launch.

Donald Trump and Jared Kushner share very similar biographies. Both are nepo babies who won the lottery at birth, essentially inheriting millions of dollars while they were still sucking on pacifiers. Trump lies about the silver spoon in his infant mouth. He says he got a small loan from his father, Fred Trump, when he was a young adult to kick-start his career. But a 2018 New York Times report revealed that by age three, Donny was already earning approximately $200,000 per year (in current dollars), eventually inheriting over $400 million by adulthood.

Jared's rich father, Charles Kushner, also founded a real estate firm in New York City, Kushner Companies, and pledged a $2.5-million donation to Harvard in 1998, greasing the wheels for Jared to be admitted to the prestigious university that same year. How's that for tuition money? In 2005, Charles Kushner pleaded guilty to 18 criminal charges: tax evasion, witness tampering and making false statements to the FEC. The witness tampering charge was particularly juicy: Charles devised a scheme where he hired a private investigator to record his brother-in-law fucking a prostitute—that he had provided—and sent the tape to his sister in an effort to prevent the pair from testifying against him. What a mensch! While Daddy was behind bars for 18 months, Jared took over the reins of the family business.

In Trump's first term, Jared was a "senior advisor" appointed to manage a wide portfolio of duties despite zero experience in government: privatizing federal operations through his White House Office of American Innovation; helping fumble Trump's inept response to the COVID-19 pandemic; overseeing criminal justice reform with the First Step Act; and helping negotiate the Abraham Accords—a peace deal with Arab nations that critics argue did nothing to solve the conflict between Israel and Palestine and essentially sidelined Palestinian statehood, prompting Hamas's October 7th terrorist attack. To operate at this high level, Jared had to submit a financial statement disclosing possible conflicts of interests. He conveniently forgot to mention his part ownership in Cadre, a real-estate tech company funded by Peter Thiel's Founders Fund and Goldman Sachs, and his partnership with the Steinmetz family in Israel (Beny Steinmetz, the family's most prominent figure, was convicted of corruption charges in Switzerland in 2021). He was also obligated to disclose any meetings he had with foreign officials in the past seven years and failed to mention his meetings with Russian ambassador Sergey Kislyak and the head of a Russian state-owned bank. It's doubtful that Kushner was suffering from Alzheimer's at age 35. He was initially denied a security clearance for these evasions, but Trump's lackey Carl Kline, director of personnel security, overruled the experts and cleared him anyway.

During his time in the White House, Kushner became bosom buddies with Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman, infamous for having Washington Post journalist Jamal Khashoggi murdered and dismembered with a bone saw at the Saudi consulate in Istanbul in 2018. In 2021, declassified U.S. intelligence documents established with high confidence that bin Salman personally approved the bloody operation. Asked about this shocking act by his close pal in 2024, Kushner responded incredulously, "Are we really still doing this?" Yep, Jared, we are, because there's no statute of limitations for homicide. He continued, "I understand why people, you know, are upset about that. I think that what happened there was absolutely horrific. But again, our job was to represent America, and to try to push forward things in America." He forgot to mention that he was also "pushing forward things" for himself: After his White House duties were over in 2020, the Saudis invested a whopping $2 billion from their Public Investment Fund in Kushner's private equity firm, Affinity Partners.

And that bundle of money is a huge conflict of interest now that Kushner is back in the saddle with his sidekick Steve Witkoff—another real-estate mogul who critics argue is enriching himself and the Trump family by leveraging his position as special envoy through cryptocurrency deals with the UAE and Qatar. Both are winging it as negotiators with Iran over the complex issue of the country's nuclear enrichment program. At the talks in Geneva on February 26, Iran sent seasoned diplomats headed by Iranian Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi to hash out the details. But it was clear to the Iranians that Witkoff and Kushner were out of their depth, completely ignorant of the technology they were trying to put the brakes on. Araghchi reportedly had to tutor both of them about the basics, with accounts citing Witkoff's knowledge as "sketchy." Trump launched his sneak attack on Iran 48 hours later, having been hornswoggled by Netanyahu's rosy scenarios that the regime would collapse and that Iran would be too weak to close the Strait of Hormuz or do much damage to our Gulf allies. It would be quick and easy and a feather in Trump's cap. Wrong on every single count!

After weeks of futile war that accomplished nothing but a lot of needless death and destruction, a fragile ceasefire was announced on April 8. Then, a couple weeks later, Trump was planning to send the same incompetent duo, Witkoff and Kushner, to Islamabad, Pakistan, to negotiate a permanent peace. Embarrassingly, he was forced to abruptly cancel the planned trip, since the Iranians left after speaking with Pakistani negotiators. Why wasn't Trump sending Secretary of State Marco Rubio or other professional diplomats, instead of these ignorant real-estate honchos? Was this just another ruse preceding another sneak attack? The Iranians view Kushner and Witkoff as representatives of Israeli interests more than American interests. There is no trust there. Meanwhile, at press, the entire world is suffering from the lack of critical oil and urea fertilizer as the Strait of Hormuz remains regulated by Iran and blockaded by blockhead Trump, whose idea of negotiations is "my way or the highway."

War, it turns out, can be a lot more complicated and consequential than a real-estate deal. When Jared was asked about the Trump Administration's controversial "Peace to Prosperity" plan for the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, he answered, "I've been studying this now for three years. I've read 25 books on it." This garnered a reply from Washington Post humorist Alexandra Petri, who penned a column titled, "I have just read 25 books and am here to perform your open-heart surgery." That about sums up the tragedy we're in now: Trump has performed surgery on the beating heart of the planet—the Persian Gulf—and he's bungled it. To save the day, to keep the world from spiraling into a global depression and World War III, he's relying on Boy Wonder from the Kushner Companies—a smug ignoramus who'd be better off working as a funeral director. If he, Trump and the whole circus of amateurs in this administration are not reined in soon, it could result in the whole planet's funeral. H

PHOTOGRAPHY BY ELLEN STAGG

My favorite body part has to be my butt. I work out a lot and take pride in having a nice, plump booty. Personally, I feel like that's the part of me that gets the most attention, so naturally it's going to be my favorite.

"I have so much amazing sex all the time. There isn't a favorite moment that comes to mind—each experience is different in its own way—but the craziest place I've ever had sex was probably on a picnic table in a public park. Luckily, we never got caught, but I do love a little public sex. The risk factor is so sexy.

"Dating as someone in the industry is not an easy task, but having a stable support system is the core of it all. I need someone who's gentle yet protective and who constantly makes me feel loved regardless of what life brings my way. In a relationship I prefer to be with someone more masculine because I'm more of a feminine person. Sexually, I am into both genders, but I'm super open-minded and love sharing women with my man."

LARRY LOVED AMERICA!

“A phony patriot wraps himself in the American flag while chipping away at the rights of others. A true patriot wraps a naked lady in the flag and puts her on the cover of his liberty-loving magazine.

“For Larry, America was flawed, but always worth honoring. Nearly every July cover of HUSTLER® is a tribute to Independence Day—and to the magazine itself, which just happens to celebrate its birthday the same month as the USA.

“This double celebration has inspired some firecracker-hot photos over the years…”

One big lesson life has taught me is that you can't force things. A lot of people spend way too much time trying to make things work when, the truth is, a lot of times life will naturally shift you into what your next phase should be. Once you accept that, things will unfold more smoothly and naturally. I like to say, practice today. It's a lesson that has served me well—the things I used to stress about mean nothing to me now, and I feel like I have the spirit of an 18-year-old.

"I didn't get into porn until I was older, but it wasn't because of any hang-ups or reluctance—there were just other things that I wanted to experience beforehand, like marriage, motherhood and serving in the military. I knew that I wanted to pursue porn by the time I was 18. I didn't grow up in a judgmental environment. My stepmother used to shoot artistic nude photography, and I've always considered the human body as a work of art.

"I really hate when people look down on adult film performers, especially when they get off to our work! I love to fuck, and getting to do it for a living is incredible! It's too bad that the haters can't find the same happiness in their own lives."

AVA ROSE

GIVE ME LIBERTY OR GIVE ME SEX!

HUSTLER CLASSIC

HOLLY RANDALL

Blessed with good looks and boundless energy, Ava Rose can now justly call herself a big star. "Has it really been almost two years?" chirps the alluring Ms. Rose, who made a low-key HUSTLER debut as an April '06 Beaver Hunt flasher. "Wow! Time sure flies when you're having fun—especially when you're fucking!" And doing it virtually around the clock. "I never really think about how many scenes I've done so far," the vivacious vamp remarks, "because I love sex so much. The fact that it's on film only makes it hotter."

Ava admits that she sometimes gets a bit competitive with a fellow porn star, namely her younger sister. "Mia and I often want to screw the same guys," Ava reveals. "I usually get them first because I'm more aggressive. That doesn't mean I won't share. We've been known to double-team dudes on film and off."

My friends would probably describe me as caring, goofy and maybe a little nerdy. I have a huge heart, and I always want people to feel seen and heard. Sometimes I just want to make people laugh. I appreciate similar qualities in others. My ideal partner is someone who is kind, attentive and confident—someone who can make me laugh, make me come and then allow me to feel safe in their arms afterward.

"My favorite thing about being in the adult industry is that I get to create a new fantasy with every shoot. I love being that fantasy. It's empowering, and of course it's fun! As for my personal fantasies, I'd love to perform onstage, either solo or with a partner, while dozens of people watch me, knowing they're turned on for me and are going to be thinking about it again and again later.

"Speaking of fantasies, being in HUSTLER Magazine has been a dream of mine since I entered the industry. I am beyond honored to be a part of the HUSTLER family! Thank you so much for this amazing opportunity."

CELEBRATE SLUTS!

BY JOHN BLAYLOCK

Fuck slut-shaming and all slut shamers. This is a celebration of women who know what they want and take it.

SHAME IS ON THE OUTS. SEX IS OURS TO ENJOY, SAFELY AND CONSENSUALLY. BEING A SLUT IS NO LONGER SOMETHING TO HIDE. IN FACT, NOW IT CAN BE A POINT OF PRIDE. AND HUSTLER IS PROUD TO CELEBRATE THE SUPERSTAR SLUTS WHO PRACTICE THE FREEDOM TO FUCK WITHOUT PREJUDICE. SLUT POWER!

CONNIE PERIGNON

If you think her breasts are intimidating, then you haven't seen Connie Perignon take down slut-shamers on X. A voracious performer and in-demand escort, Connie lives the mantra "Life is short—be a slut!"

HUSTLER: Do you remember the first time someone called you a slut?
CONNIE PERIGNON: I can't recall the exact moment I first heard it, but one of my earliest experiences being called a slut was because I had gotten my tongue pierced. I was 12. I never really felt any way about it; I lost my virginity very early and was proud of my sexuality. From a young age, I recognized that promiscuity—or rather, perceived promiscuity—was weaponized against me simply because I was a girl. Instead of getting offended, I always sought to reclaim my sexuality for myself. It was cool to be sexy, to be sexual. It was cool to be desired. At least, to me it was.

One of my favorite Connie tweets is about how you always strive to be the biggest slut in the room. That's so badass.
I'll defend being a slut till I die. Sometimes I'll have conversations with men and call myself a slut or a whore, and they'll go out of their way to tell me that I'm not one or that I'm better than that. My response is always the same: "No, I am exactly that, and it's not a bad thing." From pain and hardship to being a proud slut and living a beautiful, full life…I'm finally free. Everything I have, my pussy achieved for me. Why would I ever be ashamed of it?

We live in a world that habitually exploits women and tears them down for daring to own their sexuality. Does it wear you out, the hypocrisy of it all?
They hate us either way, so just live how you want, whether you choose to be sexually liberated or not. We see this all the time: They want the sexy, freaky girl, but only on their terms. We can't win. Be a slut. Do what you want. Have fun.

You are a top-tier adult performer and a full-service sex worker, aka escort. Do you face double discrimination for doing both, and is this an example of the "whorearchy"?
I don't participate in the whorearchy, because it's just a way to divide [the sex worker] community. If we're consenting adults participating in consensual activities, who's to say a camgirl is less of a whore than a stripper? Or an escort? Or a dominatrix? Society views us all the same. The banks will discriminate against us exactly the same. Whorearchy is just a false sense of morality in an objectively immoral world. Fuck it. >>

As a performer, is it validating to be celebrated for who you are and what you love?

I think it's less about the validation and more about just doing me. I like to fuck, I like to get crazy, and I love being objectified—on my own terms, of course. The fact that I get to make an entire career out of just being myself is a dream, and I'm grateful every day for the opportunity.

Let's have a little fun: What is the sluttiest thing you've ever done?

I once fucked nine guys in a span of 24 hours…separately. Is that slutty enough?

And how! You are proof-positive that proud sluts will not be silenced into submission. Do you ever reflect on who you were and how you got here?

Like most girls, I learned at a young age what it meant to be sexualized. A passing catcall down the street, boys suddenly not being friends with you because you turned them down. For a long time, it felt like something that was out of my control. Then I started using it to my advantage, because if they're going to do it anyway, then I might as well gain something from it. Sex work freed me; it gave me autonomy and upward mobility, transforming something that once felt nonconsensual to fully reclaiming it for myself.

SOPHIA LOCKE

Confident, enthusiastic, sex-positive slut Sophia Locke is living the dream and loving her life. A depraved sweetheart adored by her fans and XXX community alike, this MILF Performer of the Year (XMA Awards, 2026) recently made the leap to mainstream entertainment as Sophia Vincent, professional singer. Yes, she's expecting some blowback, but don't expect an apology—when you own it as hard as Sophia does, slut supremacy is nigh.

HUSTLER: I've been documenting the slutty adventures of Sophia Locke since 2016, and you never cease to amaze. Open and unashamed, your performance is as honest as it is electrifying. What were you like before porn?

SOPHIA LOCKE: I used to be so outwardly focused, judging other women for being slutty while secretly wishing I could be like them. I remember there was this moment—it was my first year in college. I was seated in one of the walkways when a woman walked by. She was superhot, and for the first time I thought, Damn! You go, girl. It was then that I became fully confident in myself, no more insecurity. It also helped with my bisexuality too! A defining moment for me.

The last decade of your life can be broken down into three distinct phases: camgirl and BDSM lifestyler, hiatus, then your comeback arc as an award-winning adult performer. Looking back, how has your perspective evolved?

I think the main thing that has shifted—and grown—is my confidence. I never felt any shame about doing the things that I did because they were all inviting and consensual environments that were fun to explore. But being a proud slut and open about it? Probably only the last four years. When I returned to adult entertainment, I really owned it in a way that I couldn't before.

I think porn has been essential in reaching the level of confidence I have in who I am. It's also helped me find safe ways to express it with like-minded people. It can't be overstated how much this industry and being in porn has fully nurtured my inner sluttiness [laughing].

I grew up with the idea that there was no way to do this for a living and be empowered. And I was shocked by how empowering it felt when I started camming. I was like, this can't be the same thing my mother told me about. It's the complete opposite of what some people think it is. In my experience.

Is there a parasocial aspect to being a slut and how fans interact with you? Content is fantasy, but do the lines ever get blurred?

I've always had very positive and supportive fans. But the people who reach out to me directly—sometimes anonymously, mostly through DMs—can be so frustrating. They see me expressing my sexuality so publicly, and they just assume that they can be a part of it too. There is this expectation of access put upon us.

SOPHIA LOCKE PHOTOS BY APRIL ALSTON McKAY

In person, it isn't really an issue; people are really respectful. I've met couples at conventions who tell me how watching my stuff helped their sex life, and I love that. But online, behind the keyboard, people seem to think this extends to them all of the time. That's where it gets a bit annoying. I only toe-dip in the world where expressing sexuality is demonized, and I'd love for this to change in my lifetime.

When it comes to sexuality, for better or worse, we hold the cards. To exert control, men will shame women—even when what they shame us for is what they want. A broader goal in my life and career, both adult and music—is in humanizing us. I think that, in writing about us and talking to us, it's no longer just sexual objects on a screen to control or objectify. And the more we have these kinds of conversations about what being slutty is and owning that and humanizing sex workers in the process, the more people will feel the way you do.

You hard-launched your professional singing career last year. Have you thought at all about how people will react? Are you ready for questions about porn and your sexuality?

Of course people are going to bring it up, and there is no part of me that wants to hide it. That is why I decided to keep my stage name, Sophia, for both industries. I do think that sex sells in music, and that's a net-positive for me. But I'm not putting it at the forefront of my music career; it's more elegant sensuality as opposed to the hypersexuality I bring to my porn side. Yes, I'm expecting backlash, but having the support of fans and music industry professionals has given me the confidence to go as big as I can with this childhood dream.

You're very open about how porn has impacted your relationship with your mother. Why do you think she is so incapable of accepting who you are?

We're still no-contact. I think it's been 12 years since we talked about it and maybe eight years of complete radio silence. There is something about that generation's brand of feminism where sex, or expressing your sexuality—especially publicly—cannot exist and be empowering at the same time. The frustrating part, for me, is the cognitive dissonance of "I don't think this job can be empowering," of sex work as a last resort for women, versus how she raised her daughter to be confident.

Do you have any regrets?

If I could go back in time and do something differently, I don't think I would. This is who I am; being a slut has brought me so much joy and community and a life I love. I would do it the exact same way.

DAHLIA DEE

Once upon a time, Dahlia Dee endured casual indignity and Catholic guilt as her cross to bear. Older, wiser and hopelessly addicted to orgasms, this award-winning (Pornhub, 2025) BBW performer and content creator is here to set the record straight about sex as an act of empowerment. Her slut journey has been a wild one. And it's far from over.

HUSTLER: When were you first confronted by this four-letter word?
DAHLIA DEE: I assume I'm not alone in this—by a long shot—but my earliest memory of being called a slut was on the playground, long before I knew what it meant and long before I was even sexually active.

That's a good example of how this word is deployed.
Oh, for sure. The word is so contradictory, it can pretty much be whatever the person using it wants it to be in the moment: Slut can mean you're promiscuous, or that you rejected the person's advances. It can mean they think you're a good person or a piece of shit, that they love you or hate you.

> “BEING A PROUD SLUT ISN'T JUST A HOBBY OR A JOB FOR ME—IT'S A WAY OF LIFE.”

How did sex work help you to reclaim it as your own?
Sex work has been absolutely instrumental, both in reclaiming my sluthood and finding the confidence to express it. When I entered the industry, suddenly I was part of a world where being a slut is not only allowed; it's encouraged and will earn you money while consistently being the safest way to explore sex and kink. Given the amount of support and community we sluts have in porn, it's hard for me to see sluttiness as anything but positive.

Can porn have a positive effect on how we view women who have agency over their sexuality?
I think it can, and I think it already does. Slut is used so frequently as a positive descriptor in porn that I really think it's starting to change how we see women who identify as such. We're using the word to refer to fun, carefree and sexual beings who want to indulge our dirty sides. Being in the adult industry has helped me to realize that sex, pleasure, loving your body and the things you can do to make it feel good are not shameful acts. Slut went from a horrible insult to a badge of honor. In embracing my slutty nature, I'm also helping others fulfill their own sexual needs—and I think that's a beautiful thing.

Some of your best-selling content is slut-themed. What's the story here? Is it driven by fan demand, or are we glimpsing the real Dahlia Dee in these clips?
My fans want to see me empowered, openly sexual and downright filthy. My bestselling clips are me in my natural state, hedonistic and wildly slut-tacular. And given how it's my job, that slutty attitude absolutely spills over into my personal life.

How exactly does it spill over? Who is Dahlia Dee, the slut next door?
I've always been a very open, very orgasm-driven and exhibitionistic person. I love to explore all kinds of bodies, genders, toys and holes and all the kinds of pleasure each one can bring. From performing live sex shows at adult clubs to glory holes, partner swaps and a whoooooole lot of one-night stands, being a proud slut isn't just a hobby or a job for me—it's a way of life.

What is your proudest slut moment?
It's honestly so hard to choose, because I have done so many wild things in the shameless pursuit of sluttiness, but I think my favorite was glory hole night at the sex club. I made a lot of guys come that night, and the anonymity of being in a little room, fed cock after cock, was probably peak slutty for me. Sure, I've had orgies and public sex, but there's something about being the main focus, showing off my skills in a tiny fuck booth, that I think really screams “SLUT!” I'd love to do it again someday.

Let me present you with the following tweet: “I will never understand men who think sex workers would be bad partners. You're telling me you DON'T want to get [your] cock sucked by a porn star whenever you want? You DON'T want every blowjob to be a Swallowed scene? You DON'T want that??” Personally, I would be honored. Would your partner agree?
Wholeheartedly. He was a slut before I met him, and is even more of a slut now. I know that railing your partner—or their friends—in front of hundreds of viewers is definitely not everyone's cup of tea, but for us, embracing our slutty and exhibitionist sides has only made us stronger. I think he's got it pretty good, though—sloppy toppy on demand from a literal pro? Can't ask for much more than that.

In a previous interview, you name-drop a few of your dream scene partners: Manuel Ferrara, Owen Gray, Keiran Lee, etc. How does it feel, knowing that your partner's all for it?
Truly liberating—as is the knowledge that if I did ever get the chance to fuck any of the performers you mention—or all three, maybe at the same time…hint, hint—my faithful sidekick would be cheering me on every step of the way. And it goes both ways! I applaud his sluttiness and encourage him to fuck whoever he wants too. I don't believe that all humans were meant to be sexually monogamous; I have always viewed sex and love as two very different and unrelated things.

SAGE HUNTER

Sweetheart by nature, slut by choice. Sage Hunter wears her heart on her sleeve and thinks everyone should own their sexuality. No guilt, no shame, just freedom. Sage deplores the double standards of slut-shaming but won't let it get to her. Haters are her motivators, so don't bother trying to keep a good slut down.

HUSTLER: Sage Hunter, I see you living your best slut life. How does it feel, doing what you love?
SAGE HUNTER: I mean, is it work if you love what you do?

Can't argue with that! So why do you love being a slut?
Because it makes me feel empowered. A slut is someone who has control over their body and can do whatever the hell they want to do, without compromise. No one else's opinion matters—you own your past, present and future. I fucking love sluts!

Agreed! Why shame when we can celebrate sluts?
The demonization and hypocrisy are beyond dumb, not to mention outdated. It's insane, because men typically get praised by other men for their sexual encounters, whereas women are not only judged by men but by women too. Society wants you to hate sluts, yet has no problem profiting off of them and the slut aesthetic-lifestyle. Sex sells, right?

They also have no problem being around a slut if they want to get in their pants. And if they get rejected, they call you a slut—this time it's an insult. It's easy to dehumanize a woman, especially a performer like myself. But at the end of the day, we're still getting our oat milk and strawberries right next to you at the supermarket. We do the same things. We're just like you.

> "PEOPLE ARE GONNA JUDGE NO MATTER WHAT THE FUCK YOU DO, SO YOU MAY AS WELL JUST DO WHAT YOU WANT."

You once said that if anyone calls you a slut, then it means you're doing something right.
If someone calls me a slut or whatever, then that just means I'm a great performer. Do you think you're hurting me, telling me how great I am at fucking or sucking dick? Honestly, why wouldn't I take that as high praise—especially working in adult entertainment? If you're using that word to try and hurt me, well, good luck. It's all fuel for my next performance.

People all over the world think I'm a slut, but I barely get any hate. For the most part, people see it as a positive thing, something to celebrate. If I look happy in my videos, it's because I am. For me, peak performance is knowing my fans love me for who I am and what I do.

And if you want to call me a slut based on my choice to do mainstream porn, ask yourself what's worse: Me getting paid to do my job that I love or you hate-watching my videos?

Dare I ask about your personal proclivities?
Believe it or not, my public persona is actually a tamer version of who I am IRL. Behind closed doors, no website would be able to film me because I'd be breaking all the terms and services! I've done pretty much everything with a couple exceptions. I guess that's why, with performing, it all comes so naturally.

You say you're absolutely filthy, but I have yet to hear a single juicy story…
Back in my rebellious days of never being able to get enough, I embarked on a freaky slut challenge where I had my assistant advertise a "free-use hole" on several hookup dating apps, making sure people were tested and condom-compliant. Bound and on my knees, all night long I took care of everyone who showed up. To this day I don't know who or how many came through, but the memory—and my celebratory cupcake the next morning—will live forever. I didn't even film it! I did it for the love of the game.

What about your fans? From what I can tell, they love and support you unconditionally.
Yes! I love them. I wish everyone could have my fan base. The way my fans treat me, the way they're so supportive, it makes me more excited to do what I do, because I know it will get a positive reaction. They're a bunch of freaks, and I love it!

Are you happy with how things have turned out?
Without a doubt. And in some way, I hope it helps others own their sexuality and embrace the things they like to do, regardless of stigma. People are gonna judge no matter what the fuck you do, so you may as well just do what you want.

CUBBI THOMPSON

Think being a slut won't get you far in life? Cubbi Thompson would like a word. In just a few short years, this cosplayer turned mainstream porn phenom moved into her dream home, found financial independence and earned industry acclaim (Best Newcomer, XMA Awards, 2026). Cubbi is so much more than her exquisite endowments. As she explains, being a proud slut is synonymous with success.

HUSTLER: Early bloomer or late bloomer?
CUBBI THOMPSON: I was exploring my sexuality from a young age and grew up in an environment where I wasn't shamed for it, which definitely helped. Physically, yes, I was a very early bloomer. Every woman in my family has a large, well-endowed chest. I never felt shy about it; nor would I ever not show them off. I'm happy and confident in who I am and how I look.

I was called a slut all through school and growing up, and it was very hurtful to me at the time. Certain words used to make me feel bad; now they're mantras that I live by to this day.

You're so right—words are powerful, but that power goes both ways.
Exactly. For example: cunt. This word used to make me feel powerless, but now it's a word I embrace. Cunt doesn't have to be a bad thing. A cunt can be a strong, empowered woman who stands her ground and goes after exactly what she wants, or someone who is serving looks and shining with amazing energy. It's all about the power you put into it. Slut is the same to me: It used to be this hurtful thing that made me feel ashamed because I was a flirt, but now it's synonymous with success. I am proud to be slutty and flirty and seductive because it has given me the life that I have today. I wouldn't trade it for the world.

How did you summon the courage to go from cosplayer to hardcore superstar?
My natural ambition. I have always been an entrepreneur whose wish list of life goals resembles a CVS receipt; i.e., long as hell. Back in the day, I gained a small but loyal following from my cosplays and convention appearances. When I decided to debut my NSFW side, the response was so overwhelmingly positive that it cemented my career as an adult content creator. I love falling into passion and seeing how far it can take me!

I remember one tweet, posted right before you dove into mainstream studio work: "I think I'm ready to be the biggest slut." Was that a turning point for you?
Great memory! Yes, that was back when I was still just doing solo content and live streams. Here I am three years later, full force into mainstream adult entertainment. I even won Best Newcomer at the 2026 XMA Awards! So, yeah, I'd say I'm slutting it up pretty good.

Being a slut put me in my dream home before the age of 23. It bought me my dream car, paid for trips and sights I've always wanted to see and experience. Being a slut made it all happen. Not to mention the family and friendships that will last me a lifetime. Being a slut has given me the financial freedom I always wanted, along with life experiences and the human connections that nourish my soul.

Now that you are an award-winning XXX star, what are you doing to cultivate an even sluttier aura?
Honestly, experimenting is one of the most fun things, and I think everybody should be doing it. Sometimes I surprise myself and find something that I never would've guessed would turn me on so much and will literally have me dripping down my thighs. Just because you're an award-winning slut doesn't mean you can't level up!

Have you ever considered leading a workshop for aspiring sluts?
Educating others is my passion. I have done panel discussions on marketing, live-streaming and content management. I am definitely not a gatekeeper. I want everyone to not only be a proud slut, but a prosperous slut too. From media censorship to discriminatory government and internet regulations, we are constantly being targeted by those who seek to silence us, demonize us. I think it's very important that we all stick together and help each other out.

The age of slut-shaming is over. It's time to celebrate! What can we do to show our appreciation for sluts?
Help out your favorite slut however you can, whether it be financial, spiritual or otherwise. One of the best things you can do is support the content we put out. Jacked off to me today? Drop a tip on one of my pages to let me know you were thinking of me, and then for the rest of the day I'll be thinking of you! If you see I posted a cute selfie, like it, comment and reshare. All of these little things help more than you know. It means the world to me when you watch my YouTube videos because I know you like me for who I am, and not just my boobs on your timeline.

I was sort of a late bloomer when it came to sex. Up until I turned 20, I had only fucked one dude. After that, however, I dove in and explored my sexuality. Now I'm in porn, and it's awesome! Not only has it made me more comfortable with sex and my body in general, but I've met really great, fun people. I love how nonjudgmental the environment is too. The adult industry has opened up a world of possibilities!

"Sexually, I'm usually pretty submissive. I like getting choked, having my hair pulled and my ass slapped—the whole thing. Where I get dominant is giving blowjobs. I really like to take charge when I'm sucking cock. And of course I swallow—that's mandatory! I enjoy bringing other people happiness. And you don't have to go down on them to do it. Something as basic as a compliment or a comforting touch can make someone's day. Kindness makes the world go 'round!"

WELCOME TO VOYEURS’ FAVE AMATEUR SHOWCASE SINCE JULY 1976!

BEAVER HUNT®

EDITED BY MORGEN “TEX” HAGEN

NAOMI LOVE

“I’m a very happy young woman,” professes Naomi Love, 23, from Frydlant, Czechia. “It’s very rare that I don’t have a smile on my face. What’s more, I love to make men smile too. That’s why I decided to be a nude model.” The 5-foot-9 Eurobabe continues, “Good deeds create good karma. I truly enjoy getting naked in front of a camera and showing off my body.” Besides an adoration of Renaissance art, Naomi has hobbies that attest to her resolve. “I’m a jigsaw puzzle and board game maestro,” she explains, “especially when I’m playing Imhotep: The Duel and Go.” As for amorous pursuits, Naomi discloses, “Sex is another golden opportunity to create good karma. Yes, I’m into everything from giving head to anal intercourse, but lately I’ve been learning to take my lovers and myself to nirvana fucking in positions from the Kama Sutra. I’m quite limber.” —Photos by Omnia Productions

“My fantasy is taking a tour of Frydlant Castle and sneaking off with someone and having sex in a bedroom where no one is allowed to go.”

MUFF BUFFS

It's Beaver Hunt's 50th birthday, and we're celebrating the occasion by bringing back a half-dozen newbies sporting pubic hair, which once ruled the pelvic landscape, but not anymore. Emma—a nursing student from Austin, Texas—disclosed, "I'm originally from Taiwan; my interests include movies, traveling and motorsports; and I think nude modeling could become my favorite hobby." Mom-to-be Julie from Junction City, Kansas, stated, "I'm very comfortable showing off my body. I'm also very outgoing. That's how I got pregnant." Crystal Chase—a college student from Killeen, Texas—marveled, "Posing nude makes me feel sexy and bolsters my self-confidence." The partaker of a "mind-blowing" romp in a helicopter and lesbian orgies added, "Seducing shy, pretty girls is lots of fun, but I'm mostly into guys who treat me like a princess." Felicia Fisher—a "sweet, playful and bratty" phone-sex operator from Denver, Colorado—recalled, "When I was 19, I worked at a porn shop, stocking and reading the magazines. I thought it would be cool to be seen naked in a magazine and jerked off to, particularly in one as esteemed as HUSTLER." Our most hirsute Beaver in decades went on to say, "I learned in my early 20s just how powerful it is to be hairy. It feels and looks so hot. It helps that I grow a lot of hair down there!" Aja Mercury—a ceramics artist from El Paso, Texas—asserted, "I have two main passions—art and sex—and I love combining them. I call myself a whore. It's not to degrade or disrespect myself. That is what I am." Josie Qu—a phone-sex operator from Chicago, Illinois—revealed, "I've been described by friends and lovers as down-to-earth, funny, thoughtful and positively indecent. I especially love role-play, whether by phone, video or in person. My favorite roles are a hotel receptionist forcing a guest to jerk off in exchange for a lost key card and a nun performing a sensual exorcism. It's fun to indulge my pervy imagination."

“I love running my fingers through the soft texture of my pubic hair. I also love the feeling of wetness coating my bush as I get turned on.”

MALIA MAY

"I'm a perfect combination of naughty, sweet and exotic," proclaims Malia May, 26, a spa manager from San Rafael, California. "I'm also laid-back, open-minded and not judgmental." The 5-foot-3 hottie digs cooking, comedy clubs, adventure flicks and rooting for the Bay Area's sports teams, but bright, sunny days fuel her derring-do. "I love running naked through the woods and skinny-dipping," Malia tells us. "I feel most at peace being in touch with the earth. And of course I've had sex in the great outdoors." On that note, she confides, "I will move mountains for my loved ones and will do anything to satisfy them. Even though I enjoy the sensuality of another woman, men are my true passion. I'm a die-hard submissive. I like being told what to do, and I blow men's minds with my energy and sexual talents." Malia wraps up her introductory bio by admitting, "I'm not sure what to expect as a rookie model. I hope your readers like what they see!"

"My fantasy is to book a hotel room, where I give a blind date a hot show and play the dominant role for a change."

ARE YOU AN AMATEUR EXHIBITIONIST 18 YEARS OF AGE OR OLDER? For information on how to be a Beaver Hunt model—and be paid $200—send an email to BeaverHunt@LFP.com.
